"The baby must have a name!

A conclave proud and grand : They peer in the curtained cradle And each with one voice exclaim, As they point to the new found treasure,

They bring forth the names by dozens, With many an anxious look : They scan all the tales and novels They search through the good Old Book: Till the happy-voiced young mother

Now urging her prior claim, Cries out in the fondest accents. "Oh, give him a pretty name :"

'His grandpa was Ebenezer-· Long buried and gone, dear soul," Says the trembling voice of grandma, As the quiet teardrops roll.

"Oh, call him Eugene Augustus," Cries the youngest of the throng-" Plain John," says the happy father, " Is an honest name and strong."

And thus is the embryo statesman Perhaps, or the soldier bold, Respecting his future title Left utterly out in the cold! And yet, it can matter but little To him who is heedless of fame-For no man will honor the mortal, If the mortal dishonors the name.

The Best Location for Fruit Trees.

Germantown Telegraph. This question has often come up for discussion, and as is usual on all questions of the kind, there is a considerable diversity of opinion. We have our own and have frequently expressed it. For a peach. pear or apple orchard we should select a northern exposure in order that the swelling of the buds and their blooming might be as long delayed as possible and thus pass over the period of probable frost unharmed. Take the present season, for instance, and mark the condition of the buds to-day, and what must be the consequence of a severe freeze in the latter part of this month or the forepart of next month? And that we shall have it before long, on account of the almost unparalleled mild winter and spring up to this writing, may be looked for with almost absolute certainty. It is the late springs on which we must depend for our best crops of fruits of the larger kinds : but when the season is not too backward or forward, a northern exposure to retard

We had an old friend in Montgomery county-the late Judge Longstreth, than whom there was no better citizen in the county-who was nearly always successful in raising peaches, having an orehard of about one hundred trees, and who told us that his practice was when a snow fell in the latter part of January or in February, to pile it around the stems of the trees to the depth of a foot or more, well-tramped down. This retarded the blooming for a full months later, so that in nearly all cases his crop was uninjured by late frosts, as is so often done in Delaware, Maryland and elsewhere.

the blooming is to be preferred for or-

But, in connection with the raising of pears and cherries, the results are so varable and singular as to be difficult to understand them or to adopt a remedy. A plan that will do well in one part of a premises will fail in another part, though they-may be only a hundred vards apart. Then, too, while lime, salt or a fertilizer may prove a remedy for cracking, falling prematurely off, or failing to ripen, in one case, in the other it will have no effect at

With cherries it is worse. One never knows when there will be a crop. A tree may be covered with blossoms, you watch it carefully, and you see nothing to interfere with an overloaded tree of fruit. There is no storm, hail or rain at the time of inflorescence, the latter of which is especially injurious at this delicate period, and yet there is no fruit. They will grow freely until half the full size, when they suddenly-sometimes in a single day-turn black and fall to the ground. The tree itself, too, without giving any indication, will suddenly curl up its leaves and die. Some years ago we had six trees, over twenty years old, which bore full crops nearly every year, but they died within a few weeks of each other one fall. They were of differ-ent varieties, embracing Mayduke, Black Eagle, Black Tartarian, Florence, Down-ton and Governor Wood. They stood in cultivated ground, not over thirty feet apart. Grass, we are very well-satisfied, is the best for pears or cherries.

No Place for Winter Roses. One of the fictions which are crammed down the throats of immigrants on the Pacific Slope is the tropical climate of Washington Territory. It is said for example, that as many as twenty-seven varieties of roses were seen in full bloom in the open air on Christmas day near the shores of Puget Sound. An old resident of the territory denies that there is any such degree of salubrity on that coast. He never saw roses in bloom at any time during the winter months. He has seen the snow four feet deep on a level, at the bay at the mouth of the Columbia River, in the southwestern portion of the territory, as full of ice as Goose Lake for a month or six weeks at a time. The climate of Eastern Washington territory is very much like that of Modoc county. There is more wind in the fall and winter, but the springs are earlier owing to the prevalence during the latter part of February and the first of March of a cold, coiling wind, which, being of a temperature a few degrees above the freezing point, takes off the snow and dries the ground quickly.

MEDICAL.

Brandy as a Medicine.

The following article was voluntarily sent to Mr. H. E. Slaymaker, Agent for Reigart's Old Wine Store, by a prominent practising physician of this county, who has extensively used the Brandy referred to in his regular practice. It is commended to the attention of those afflicted with Indigestion and Dyspepsia. BRANDY AS A MEDICINE.

This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we present to the favorable notice of invalids—especially those afflicted with that miserable disease Dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than

Brandy. . The aged, with teeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly,

A Sovereign Remedy or all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is,

REIGART'S OLD BRANDY, Sold by our enterprising young friend, H.'E. SLAYMAKER. This Brandy has stood the test for years, and has never failed, as far as our experience extends, and we therefore give it the preference over all other Brandies, no matter with how many jaw-breaking French titles they are branded. One-fourth of the money that is yearly thrown away on various impotent dyspepsia specifies would suffice to buy all the Brandy to cure any such case or cases. In proof of the curative powers of Reigart's Old Brandy, In cases of Dyspepsia, we can summon num bers of witnesses—one case in particular we A hard-working tarmer had been afflicted with an exhaustive Dyspepsia for a number of years; his stomach would reject almost every kind of food; he had sour eructations constantly—uo appetite—in fact, he was obliged to restrict his diet to crackers and stale bread, and as a beverage he used McGrann's Root Beer. He is a Methodist, and then, as now, preached at times, and in his discourses often declaimed earnestly against all kinds of strong drink. When advised to try Reigart's Old Brandy, In his case, he looked up with astonishment, but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which he chose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practising Physician.
